AT THE DANCANTS

Army and Navy Spectators Meet After the Game at the Bellevue Dance.

The dancant at the Bellevue-Stratford on Saturday afternoon attracted an unusually large number of persons, and although these weekly affairs are given in the Rose Garden, last week's took place downstairs in the ballroom, which was crowded to capacity.

Among the debutantes on the floor was Miss Katharine Seeler, wearing a most becoming sand-colored suit with spots to match.

Miss Marjorie Taylor, who was formally introduced at a luncheon given by her mother November 11, will be given a dinner-dance this evening by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Supple, at their beautiful home in Latches lane, Merion.

The guests will be seated at small tables, which will be placed about the library, dining room and drawing room on the first floor. Large plateaux of yellow chrysanthemums will be used for table decorations.

Miss Susan Ingersoll was gowned in green pea de chamois, with a large black velvet hat flaring at the side.

Dr. and Mrs. James A. Babbitt entertained a party of eight, as did Mrs. J. E. Lloyd. A party of 10 persons were entertained by Lieutenant A. B. Court, U. S. N., and Mrs. Court, who had attended the game earlier in the afternoon.

Dr. E. Kilbourne Tullidge, who will leave shortly for Europe, having volunteered for the Red Cross service in the Austrian army, gave a little farewell party to a group of friends.

Among others dancing were Miss Priscilla Bohlen, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Earle White, Mrs. Harry Drinker Riley, John H. Potter, Mrs. Robert W. Downing, Mr. and Mrs. Boulton Earnshaw, Mrs. Charles Lloyd, Stanley Reed, Thomas F. Taylor, G. K. Gardner, J. A. Fuller, Jr., Captain and Mrs. Baldwin and Mrs. A. Curtis.

Miss Adelia M. Wright, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Cushing, of 2511 South 20th street, in the Girard Estate, has returned to her home in Bristol, Pa.

Miss Margaret Packard, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Hunt, wife of Lieutenant Commander W. F. Hunt, U. S. N., of the navy yard, has returned to her home in Burlington, N. J.

Miss Margaret Hanneke, of 2671 Carpenter street, will be the guest of Miss Helen Higgins, of Phoenixville, over the week-end.

The marriage of Miss Helen Zane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Morris Zane, of 2500 West Tioan street, to Harold MacGibbon, of Santa Fe, N. M., was solemnized on Wednesday night, November 25, at the home of the bride's parents.

Billy Ledger's Gossip

"CERTAINLY had a narrow escape just now," she remarked as she tripped daintily down her club steps.

"You know some of us have formed a sort of Current Events Class, improves the mind and that sort of thing, and they asked me to write a paper on Korea. I kept putting it off and putting it off, and what with a trip to New York and a house party in the country I found I couldn't possibly give the time to the silly old paper.

"How on earth," I interrupted. "Oh, tea and a smile will work wonders even with a college professor, you know."

I bowed to her superior knowledge. "The paper was most successful. Everybody said it was wonderful, but the thing almost ended in a catastrophe. Some silly woman asked me where Korea was. It was a dreadful moment. Then I had an inspiration. 'My dear,' I said, 'I would tell you in a minute, but that is not the best way to remember facts, and for your own good you should look it up for yourself in the encyclopedia. Then you will never forget it.' And do you know she actually thanked me for the suggestion! Isn't it killing?"

I hear the polo men in the East are planning an invasion of the West this winter. The famous Cooperstown team is going to enter for the Pacific Coast championships to be held in California, and it is quite possible that another quiet, composed of Philadelphians and New Yorkers, may also enter. The names of Drexel Paul and "Billy" Huhn have been mentioned in this connection.

This will be the first time in several years that Philadelphia polo men have figured in the Western tournaments. In 1907 a team composed of Alexander Brown, Charles Wheeler, William H. T. Huhn and Mitchell Rosengarten swept all before them at Chicago. They played under the colors of the Bryn Mawr Polo Club. In 1909 the same quartet, with the exception that Hugh Druy replaced Mr. Rosengarten, went all the way to California to compete in the Pacific Coast championships, and by dint of hard work won their way into the final round, only to be defeated for the trophy. They were greatly handicapped, if I recollect rightly, by the fact that they were forced to play on green ponds.

This season will, of course, be an off year for international polo, but it looks as though that feature would at least be partly made up for by greatly increased activity among the various clubs forming the Polo Association.

There that are in this somewhat justly celebrated universe certain persons who would not hesitate to make a wager on anything at all was sufficiently illustrated this week when a well-known member of the Racquet Club bet $200 to $300 that the Germans would be in London or have secured an indemnity from that humble burg within 18 months, which allows for the accomplishment of the interesting event until May, 1915. If the war is declared off before that time he loses the bet.

Many and varied are the freak wagers with which clubmen imbued with the gambling instincts amuse themselves. The famous rolling stunt of "Rat" Parr, the Baltimore sportsman, is probably unique in its way, but there have been plenty of other curious bets made around the clubs of this city which never received the remarkable publicity achieved by that of Mr. Parr.

One well-known tennis player made a wager with a golfer of ability that he could beat him in a golf match around the Philadelphia Country Club links, using a tennis racket if he were permitted to lift the golf ball in his hand while making the stroke. Of course, this enabled him to bat the ball an unconscionably long distance, but he found trouble in negotiating the putting greens. Nevertheless, the tennis expert won against the man using the conventional club. Only recently two prominent all-around athletes matched themselves against each other in a series of events, including tennis, golf, running, swimming and shooting.

Another former football player, who has passed his fiftieth year and incidentally is the head of one of the city's largest financial institutions, made a bet last year that he could walk a mile, run a mile and swim a mile in one hour. He did it easily. A couple of weeks ago at one of the dinner dances at a suburban country club one member bet another that he could pass himself off as a waiter and never be noticed. He donned the conventional white jacket and actually performed all the duties of a butler for the very table at which his own wife was sitting, and nobody was the wiser.

Less edifying are some of the means of passing the time employed by our 'dile club men too lax even to go in for athletics. I have seen two sitting for hours at a club window watching motor car license numbers as the vehicles passed, while by no means known to entertain some cafe athletes entire afternoons. The game consists in each contestant placing a lump of sugar in front of him and betting on whose lump will attract the first fly. The participants in this titanic struggle actually move sit perfectly still and make no noise if they hope to overcome each other.

From the few "stunts" described above it can be deduced that the idle club man's chief difficulty in life is to discover new and efficient methods of passing the time. One wonders whether it ever occurred to some of them that there is an occasion even profitable diversion from boredom to be found in work.

A number of our best known club men have gone South for the quail shooting. Yale Dolan is the guest of "Lew" Thompson, of New York, at his place in South Carolina, and Edward Crozer is entertaining a party of hunters on his extensive preserve in Georgia. Many stories are told of the remarkable fancy shooting that Mr. Thompson can accomplish, ranking with the best efforts of the vaudeville professionals.

They say he habitually carries around with him in his pockets a handful of the ordinary marbles of our childhood days. He takes a regulation gallery rifle and tossing a marble in the air himself is able to bring the gun to bear and break the tiny sphere before it reaches the ground. With some one tossing them for him he can break several at a time with a repeater.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lindig, of 210 Kensington ton avenue, entertained the members of their dancing class last week. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Waters, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Vaughn, Dr. and Mrs. J. Borzell and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lindig.

On Thanksgiving night they celebrated their 13th wedding anniversary with a large reception to their friends.

Edward Dineen has just returned from a short stay in Holmesburg, Pa.
